For now I cannot say more but thanks to everyone for being with me through all this and encouraging me to stay strong. On January 10, 2022 Djokovic has presented an entry for the Dubai Championship (Feb. 21-26), but if you continue to choose to vaccinate, you will have problems entering France by Roland Garros (if you are not vaccinated, you have to Demonstrate that Covid-19 has had last four months, according to the French vaccine standards recently approved). Covid's situation in the United Kingdom Fluctua, but at present, if Djokovic wants to play in Wimbledon, he will have quarantine for 10 days upon arrival. And for the United States Open, there are "limited exceptions" for unbidden travelers. So in summary, it will not be direct for Djokovic. Judging by the protest in the original decision-making of allowing Djokovic in Australia, he will be under increasing scrutiny during the next weeks and months in the midst of discrepancy reports with the results of his Covid-19 December tests. The world No. 1 Novak Djokovic was deported from Australia in the vines of the Australian Open. Diego Fedele/Getty ImagesNick Kyrgios is a Grand Slam champion without a doubt these seven words are not what you expected to read by the conclusion of the Australian Open, but Kyrgios and the great friend Thanasi Kokkinakis are the Grand Slam champions after The torque will set up a support wave to the title in male doubles. Kokkinakis, who has just won his first ATP title in the Adelaide International, was beaten in the first round of the singles raffle, while Kyrgios Sacó Medvedev in the second round, arriving short in four entertaining sets. The pair then focused his attention on the doubles, making a remarkable career and sometimes polyics towards the title. Nick Kyrgios and Thanasi Kokkinakis celebrate after winning the title of Men of Australian Open. Darrian Darrian Images The crowds grew every time Kyrgios and Kokkinakis took to court, and say that he played in the hands of Kyrgios. A couple of tennis rantas for the ages.Seriously Who does not love a tennis rant? We saw two of the best in Melbourne. The first arrived in the quarterfinals when Denis Shapovalov accused President Umpire Carlos Bernardes de Corrupció for not enforcing a violation of time in Nadal. "They are all corrupt!" Auger-Aliassime and Shapovalov played fearless tennis, both reaching the last eight and coming close to knocking out eventual Australian Open finalists Medvedev and Nadal, respectively.Felix Auger-Aliassime and Denis Shapovalov celebrate their ATP Cup triumph.ABrendon Thorne/Getty ImagesThere was Italian 1th seed Jannik Sinner (20) who put on a clinic against Australian Alex de Minaur, but fell to Tsitsipas in the next round. But hey, Tsitsipas is hardly a veteran at just 23 years of age!And who could forget Carlos Alcaraz? The 18-year-old Spaniard was involved in arguably the match of the tournament, playing five high-quality sets against Italian seventh seed Matteo Berrettini in blisteringly hot conditions on Rod Laver Arena.We may be unsure about which member of the Big Three will end their career with the most Slams, but one thing is certain: The sport is in hands when they do decide to call time.Dylan Alcott's classy exit and unmatched legacy?Whether it was Alize Cornet's outpouring of emotion following her breakthrough major quarterfinal appearance or the sight of Evonne Goalgong Cawley presenting world No. 1 Ashleigh Barty the Daphne Akhurst Memorial Cup, there were plenty of moments over the past two weeks in Melbourne that had us all reaching for the tissues.But perhaps none more so than when Australian icon Dylan Alcott's glittering career came to a close. The 31-year-old quad wheelchair star had announced a few months back that the curtains were to come down on his career after this event, and on the eve of his final against Dutchman Sam Schroder, Alcott was honored in Canberra as Australian of the Year.Read more: Dylan Alcott is a tennis star most proud of his off-court achievements"I've been in a wheelchair my whole life.
